

Providing convincing support

My paragraph's topic:

Babysitting is a great job for a young teenager.

Possible support:

Babysitters do not need a driver's license as they are usually picked up and driven home by a family member.

The hours when babysitters are in demand usually fall on weekends, when high school kids are not in school.

~~✗ I think babysitting is fun for teenagers.~~

~~✗ The number of licensed full time day care centers increased dramatically in 2015.~~

As a babysitter, you can earn some money each week that you can choose to spend or save.

~~✗ A lot of teenagers also work in the fast food industry.~~

Babysitting jobs do not require you to have a fixed schedule, allowing you to work when your schedule allows.

Your opinion is not a convincing detail.

Since teenagers are only interested in part-time work, this isn't relevant.

This isn't about babysitting so it won't support the topic.

First draft paragraph:

Flexibility and the opportunity to generate income make babysitting a great job for a young teenager. Babysitters do not need a driver's license as they are usually picked up and driven home by a family member. The hours that babysitters are in demand usually fall on weekends, when high school students are free. As a babysitter, you can earn some money each week that you can choose to spend or save. Best of all, babysitting jobs do not require you to commit to a fixed schedule, allowing you to work when it is convenient for you.
