

Connect sentences

Showing the importance of ideas

An important part of helping your child with homework is providing a place in your home where homework is consistently done. Make sure this space includes a table or desktop large enough for school materials. Make sure your child always works in the same place. The space should be near you so that you are available to answer questions and give support as needed.

An important part of helping your child with homework is providing a place in your home where homework is consistently done. First, make sure this space includes a table or desktop large enough for school materials. Next, make sure your child always works in the same place. Most important, the space should be near you so that you are available to answer questions and give support as needed.

Maybe I'll skip the last step!

Oops, the last step is the most important one! I better not skip it.

Showing the order of events

Rice is a quick and easy side dish to prepare and can go with almost any meal. Pour two cups of water into a sauce pan and bring it to a boil. Add one cup of rice and stir once or twice. Cover the pot and let it simmer for about 18 minutes. Remove the pot from the heat and let it sit for another 5 minutes. Fluff the rice gently with a fork and serve and enjoy!

Rice is a quick and easy side dish to prepare and can go with almost any meal. First, pour two cups of water into a sauce pan and bring it to a boil. Next, add one cup of rice and stir gently. After this, cover the pot and let it simmer for about 18 minutes. Remove the pot from the heat and let it sit for another 5 minutes. Finally, fluff the rice gently with a fork and serve and enjoy!

Are these steps in order? Maybe I can add the rice before the water boils.

Oops, I better boil the water first and then add the rice.