

Restating the conclusion

Read the conclusion aloud:

The curtain is closing on children's music instruction in our town. Let's reopen that curtain and bring back the sounds of beautiful instruments—yes, even the tuba. The show must go on, and all kids should be seen and heard on the stage! Join us at an information session next Friday night to learn more about how you can be involved.

Identify the author's key ideas:

Bring music back to the schools

Attend an information session to learn how you can be involved

Explain each idea in your own words:

The author wants the reader to agree with him that music belongs in schools.

Citizens can attend an information session to learn more about this.

Currently, music is not taught in schools in town. It is a valuable subject and schools should bring it back.

There will be an information session to learn about helping bring music back to the schools.
